"Skrijf aan ons in jou eigen taal."

To Our Patrons.

In presenting our Annual Catalogue, we beg to thank our patrons all over South Africa-Rhodesia for their liberal support in the past.

The ready demand for our Roses and Trees is a great pleasure to us, as it is a proof that our goods have given satisfaction.

No effort will be spared on our part in future to warrant customers' confidence.

Our stocks this season are larger, especially in Roses, Oranges and other Trees, but we would recommend customers to state their requirements early. Better attention is ensured thereby; it also helps us by relieving the great pressure of work towards the end of the season.

Business Terms, Etc.

This Catalogue cancels all previous issues.

The greatest care will be taken in sending our goods, but we cannot give any warrants as to description, etc. If an error has occurred, we would feel obliged to be informed of the same, which will at once be rectified.

Our terms are nett cash on receipt of consignment.

All orders under £1 should be accompanied by cash.

Packing will be charged at actual cost price.

All orders over £2 10s. will be sent Carriage Paid, except Trees in tins.

Risks of every description must be borne by the purchaser.

Orders up to 11 lb. weight are forwarded by Agricultural Post where possible, and postage should be added to each order.

PLEASE NOTE.—Unknown customers must furnish satisfactory references, otherwise goods will be sent under the C.O.D. system.

All Cheques and Money Orders should be made payable to W. LUSSEM, Fort Jackson, C.P.

Telegraphic address as above.

ROSES.

Hints on their Culture.

IT is now an established fact that Roses can be grown successfully all over South Africa. Soil and climate are almost ideal, and in consequence there is no other flower which gives equally good results with comparatively little trouble.

Roughly speaking, any garden soil in a state of good cultivation, and well drained, may be regarded as suitable.

To ensure the best results, Roses should have a liberal supply of manure. Cow manure may be regarded best; stable manure in heavy clay soil desirable: in all cases well decomposed; bone-meal is an excellent and safe stimulant.

The ground should be brought into proper condition prior to planting, the holes two feet deep.

Prune back plants severely before planting. Rambler Climbers less than other classes.

Plant grafted trees just below the union of stock and graft. Pack the soil firmly round the roots and water well. After the water has soaked away, bring some dry soil round the plants and bank up round it. During the hot spring months watering will be necessary weekly. Soak the plant well, and bring the dry cover back to it.

Roses of Recent Introduction.

FRUIT TREES

We hold a large and very fine stock of Fruit Trees this season, well over 20,000, saleable trees being on hand.

All deciduous trees are grown on exposed lands. The average rainfall here is 29 inches, and we do not practise irrigation, but grow all trees on the dry-land principle. The result is a very hardy compact tree with no sappy shoots whatever, which will have an advantage over trees forced up with water.

PRICES:—All deciduous grafted Trees, except Apples, are:

First size, 2½ ft. and over, 1/9 each; £7/10/- per 100.

Second size, from 18 in. to 2 ft., 1/3 each; £5 per 100.

Apples: First size, 2/- each; £8/15/- per 100.

Second size, 1/6 each; £6/5/- per 100.

APPLES.

All Apples are worked on blight-proof stocks, Northern-Spy being used. We also use Cliff's Seedling in a cautious way, as it is claimed for this variety that it will make a larger tree, being otherwise also absolutely blight-proof.

Alma. One of the earliest apples in cultivation, of good colour and excellent flavour.

Black Ben Davis. Beautiful solid red colour; good quality and sure cropper.

Cellini. Early cooking apple; yellow, streaked with red; flesh white and tender, fruit medium to large; this is a very early and heavy bearer; does very well here. February-March.

Cleopatra. Medium size to large, bright lemon yellow when ripe; late dessert.

Cox's Orange Pippin. Mid-season, eating, yellow and red; striped dark red, crisp, juicy, and highly perfumed, and excellent bearer and good keeper.

Commerce. Fruit large and round; tree a heavy bearer; keeps well. April-May.

Coreless. Famous American variety, being almost coreless.

Cliff's Seedling. Large, late, good quality, very highly coloured, good keeper and blight-proof. T. March-April.

CITRUS TREES

The growing of young Citrus Trees is an important part of our business, and a big demand has forced us to increase the output every year, principally Washington Navel Orange.

Favoured by climatical conditions, we grow trees of a compact, sturdy nature; grown on a clean stem up to 2ft. to 3ft. high, where they naturally branch out to form heads.

We wish to emphasise that we do not force up trees by water or manure.

Citrus trees should be planted in a naturally sheltered position where possible. Exposed draughty lands are quite unsuitable.

Where natural shelter is unavailable, strong wind-breaks should be provided for.

In planting out young trees, extreme care should be exercised. Roots should never be exposed to wind and weather; the immediate effect thereof will cause the tree to drop all its leaves and often receive fatal injuries.

Trees should be planted 2in. to 3in. higher than the soil mark of the nursery, the soil banked up to cover the roots. Mistakes should never be on the other side. Trees planted too deep will never live to maturity, as they are sure to contract collar rot.

After planting, give the tree a good soaking of water immediately; do not delay until all the trees are planted. During spells of dry weather, trees should receive a good soaking of water once a week until thoroughly established in the new position.

If any of the trees should start drying up from the top a week or two after planting, cut away all the dry parts with a sharp knife to the fresh wood, and repeat the operation if necessary.

Where no previous experience exists by the planter, not more trees should be planted in one season than he is able to supervise and manage well.

A distance of 24ft. is recommended for field cultivation each way; for garden cultivation, 18ft. to 21ft. would be ample.

PRICES:—1st size, 2½ft. and over, 3/6 per single tree; 3/- each at per 100 rate, not less than 30 trees. 2nd size, 1 1-6ft. and over, 2/6 per single tree; 2/- each at per 100 rate.

Trees in Tins.—We keep a number of trees in tins, which may be planted at any time of the year, but customers are advised to book large orders from two to three months ahead of the time the trees are required. 1/- per tree must be added for trees established in tins on prices above.

ORANGES.

St. Michal. Fruit of large size, skin deep yellow, smooth and thin, very juicy, and very few seeds.

Valencia Late. Large oblong fruit, firm and crisp, of good appearance and flavour; this variety is very late and valuable on that account.

Washington Navel. The largest of all oranges, fruit firm, of excellent flavour and strong texture; tree a good grower and a very early bearer. Its many good qualities and the fact that it is doing well all over South Africa have made this variety the most popular of all varieties.

NAARTJES.

Dredge's Giant. Very large variety of excellent quality; good grower.

Emperor. A very good variety; has a fairly smooth rind and takes on a good colour; makes a vigorous growth.

Mandarine. Fruit large, a heavy bearer, good flavour; very thin skin.

Oonshu (Satsuma). Medium size, flat, deep reddish yellow of good flavour, it is claimed to resist very heavy frost.

Tangerine. Deep orange-coloured fruit, medium size and luscious flavour; good grower and abundant bearer.

LEMONS.

Cape. Common rough lemon.

Eureka. A very fine lemon of splendid quality, large, smooth skin, with few seeds.

Lisbon. A well-known variety, and probably the best of all, the tree a fine grower and has few thorns.

LIMES.

The Tahiti. Almost seedless, with abundant acid of fine flavour.

Persian Lime. Small size, very prolific.

POMELOS or GRAPE FRUIT.

Marsh's Seedless. Medium size, thin rind, is almost absolutely seedless, has plenty of juice, is of good flavour, and a good keeper. Comes into bearing very early.
